 by Smart Business English

Schedule Dedicated Study Time

Slot a time on your calendar each day to focus on your studies. This could be before or after class, or during a free period. Set a reminder and commit to this schedule - don't skip a day!

→ Consistent, daily practice is much more effective than sporadic cramming.

Classes

Write the topic, key takeaways, and homework for each class.

Use 'Classes' for topics you have autonomously selected too.

Record

Check off assignments once completed to stay on track.

Feel free to assign tasks to yourself, such as, create a phrase with the word, look for the compatible in your mother tongue, write the new word on a post-it, etc.

The best way to improve your language skills is to actively use them. On the section "Notes and phrases", create your own sentences and phrases, then record and review them. Consistent, hands-on practice will help develop your fluency and confidence. You can also add pronunciation and any other notes that will help you remember the words and how to use them.
